The New Year Project are a thrilling new force on the London jazz scene. With a storming three piece horn section handpicked from across Europe and the tightest rhythm section ever found on the streets of South East London, this seven piece blend intricate rhythms and soulful melodies to create compelling original funk and fusion. Formed at the very start of 2013 as a New Year's resolution (hence the name!), the band have gigged around London, including a packed headline show at the EFG London Jazz Festival in November 2014. After taking some time off to record their debut EP 'One Twenty', they are back and ready to wow audiences on stage once again.

The release of their 5 track EP is the culmination of 8 months jamming, writing, recording and mixing, and brings together influences from diverse artists such as Yellowjackets, Maceo Parker, Jimmy Dluclu and Brotherly. After filming and releasing several of their live shows online, their first studio recording showcases the band's musical talents and creative energy, suggesting an exciting future ahead.
